By Staff Reporter
LANGHORNE, Oct. 29.—Salaries of the two top school administrators, Dr. Oliver Heckman and Miss Tompkins Baxter, in the school system under the jurisdiction of the Neshaminy Joint Board, were raised approximately 10% last night. The raise is retroactive to the beginning of the current school year. Following the decision of the board to grant the salary increase, John E. Paul, school board president, went on record as saying that the increase was granted because the board was pleased at the way the district's schools were being administered.

The decision was made after a minute executive session of the board which was called to discuss the salary increase matter. Members of four of the six boards present went on record as unanimously approving the salary increases.

The board heard a report by Carl Zerbby on progress being made at a new high school presently being constructed in Janney. Insurance coverage for the district's schools was discussed. The problem of payment of medical expenses for injuries received while students are engaged in school sports was brought up. And a report was heard on what had been accomplished in the effort to obtain shock recording machine for the school.

The board heard a report by Stanley Zerbby of the department of history and social sciences. Survey Made by Society For Crippled Children

To Determine If There Is Increased Need for Service In The Area

The Philadelphia Society for Crippled Children is conducting a three-month survey in the lower Bucks county area to determine whether because of the increased population there is an increased need for the society's service in the area.

According to Mrs. Mildred E. Stow, executive director of the Philadelphia society which now serves five counties, Robert Faruno, a social-service worker, is in charge of the survey in this area.

The survey was started the first of October said Mrs. Stow and the area worker has been busy calling on interested agencies in the area.

"We don't want to superimpose our services on the area's existing facilities," said Mrs. Stow. She added that it was one purpose of the survey to determine what were the available facilities in the area, and how great the need would be for a new service.

The society had an office about six years ago in the offices of the Bucks County Rescue Squad in Croydon, said Mrs. Stow, and at that time rendered emergency treatment in the homes of afflicted "polio" patients in the area at the request of the state health department.

The society hopes to institute an area treatment center in lower Bucks county. This office according to Mrs. Stow will offer physical and occupational therapy to patients at the request of local physicians.

There is presently no area office in Bucks county said Mrs. Stow. Faruno is presently conducting the survey from office space granted to the association free of charge by the Thomas Leedom Carpet Mill, Beaver street.

LAW-MAKERS ON THE TICKET

The question of who writes the laws and fixes the taxes is just as important in a Republic as the question of who is to be the chief executive.

The legislative side of the current election has perhaps been somewhat overlooked in the excitement about the Presidential and Vice-Presidential contests.

Nevertheless it is extremely urgent that the voters next Tuesday give some thought to the law-makers who are on the ticket.

The Republican nominees are men of experience and outstanding qualifications, and they fully deserve all the support they can be given.

Four law-makers are to be elected. All these Republican candidates are incumbents who have been nominated for reelection.

They are:

U. S. Senator Edward Martin, Pennsylvania's Senior member of the Upper House of Congress; a brilliant war hero and soldier who rose from the ranks, private to general; a public figure who has held with great credit all principal statewide executive positions, auditor general, treasurer and governor; and a political leader of great ability, who rose in the Republican Party to serve three terms as Republican State Chairman.

Congressman Karl C. King, first Republican Congressman from Bucks County since 1932, a nationally known intensive farmer and grower of garden produce on a vast scale; whose qualifications for Congress were so outstanding that the Democrats of the Bucks-Lehigh District refused to enter a candidate against him when he was nominated to run as successor to Congressman Vaughn, deceased, a year ago. He is now completing his first part term with a successful record.

Assemblymen Wilson L. Yeakel and Marvin V. Keller, who have served twelve and two terms respectively in the Pennsylvania State Legislature. Both have excellent records in office and both are successful business men in their own communities—Mr. Yeakel in Perkasie and Mr. Keller in Newtown.

A first duty of all voters who want good public officials is to support and re-elect those who prove themselves faithful and competent after being given a trial.

This principle means that all four of the law-makers listed above deserve your vote next Tuesday.

The way to give them your support on election day, and at the same time vote for all the other deserving Republicans on the ticket, is simple.

When you receive your ballot, look for the word "REPUBLICAN", and put a cross after it, thus:

REPUBLICAN X

One Site is 800x1,000 Feet, Other 11 Acres, Both In Levittown Area

Falls Township School Board officials yesterday afternoon laid claim to two proposed school sites in the Levittown area. Officers of Falls Township school board placed stakes in the ground at the corners of the sites.

"From this time and forever this site belongs to the Falls township school district," said Alvan Thompson board president, as the stakes were pounded into the ground.

The land to which the township school board laid claim is presently owned by Warner Sand and Gravel Co., according to T. Sidney Cadwalader, attorney for the board, who was present at the proceedings. He said he believed that at present the claimed ground was under a sale commitment to Levitt and Sons, Inc.

In explaining the reason for the school board's exercising its right of eminent domain T. Sidney Cadwalader, said, "the last site Levitt offered to us was a tract of a little over 16 acres for which he is asking some $76,000."

"The reason he gave us for the price he asked," continued Cadwalader, "was that it represented his cost of acquisition and his cost of improving the land."

"The school board feels that it can save taxpayers money if it can obtain the land now, from the Warner Co., before the land is improved."

"We have contacted Warner," Cadwalader added, "but that company said that it could not negotiate with the school board for the land because of previous commitments."

Present at yesterday's action were, Thompson, James P. Doehny, secretary of the school board; Cadwalader; and Harry H. Lee, Jr., surveyor for the school district.

The first site to which the board laid claim was a plot 800x1000 feet bounded on two sides by Elderberry Drive, the right of way of nearby high-tension wires along the other two sides bounded roughly by North Park Drive. The ground is a high level tract. It was at one time the property of William and Robert Baker.

After claim was made to the first site the school authorities placed their stakes which were marked "Falls Twp. School Dist." on an 11-acre tract which had been formerly owned by Stephen Jadlocki, according to Cadwalader. The land was sold by Jadlocki to the Warner Company, Cadwalader explained. The property adjacent to the land claimed by the school district is a tract of 10 acres for the purchase of which the board is presently negotiating.

Other survivors are a sister, and two brothers: Miss Bernice Young, Philadelphia; and Charles and Alfred Young, of New Jersey.

The young man, born in Delaware, graduated from Bensalem township high school with the class of 1951. He enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps July 9, 1951, and left for overseas service last December 15th. He was first sent into battle in January.

The body is to be forwarded to the United States, with arrangements for burial in charge of J. Maurice Tomlinson, funeral director.

A piece of cardboard placed on the floor close to the baseboard will keep paint from spotting the floor when the mold has to be painted. Masking tape works as well as cardboard.

Survey Made by Society For Crippled Children

To Determine If There Is Increased Need for Service In The Area

The Philadelphia Society for Crippled Children is conducting a three-month survey in the lower Bucks county area to determine whether because of the increased population there is an increased need for the society's service in the area.

According to Mrs. Mildred E. Stow, executive director of the Philadelphia society which now serves five counties, Robert Faruno, a social-service worker, is in charge of the survey in this area.

The survey was started the first of October said Mrs. Stow and the area worker has been busy calling on interested agencies in the area. "We don't want to superimpose our services on the area's existing facilities," said Mrs. Stow. She added that it was one purpose of the survey to determine what were the available facilities in the area, and how great the need would be for a new service.

The society had an office about six years ago in the offices of the Bucks County Rescue Squad in Croydon, said Mrs. Stow, and at that time rendered emergency treatment in the homes of afflicted "polio" patients in the area at the request of the state health department.

The society hopes to institute an area treatment center in lower Bucks county. This office according to Mrs. Stow will offer physical and occupational therapy to patients at the request of local physicians.

There is presently no area office in Bucks county said Mrs. Stow. Faruno is presently conducting the survey from office space granted to the association free of charge by the Thomas Leedom Carpet Mill, Beaver street.

The question of who writes the laws and fixes the taxes is just as important in a Republic as the question of who is to be the chief executive.

The legislative side of the current election has perhaps been somewhat overlooked in the excitement about the Presidential and Vice-Presidential contests.

Nevertheless it is extremely urgent that the voters next Tuesday give some thought to the law-makers who are on the ticket.

The Republican nominees are men of experience and outstanding qualifications, and they fully deserve all the support they can be given.

Four law-makers are to be elected. All these Republican candidates are incumbents who have been nominated for reelection. They are:

U. S. Senator Edward Martin, Pennsylvania's Senior member of the Upper House of Congress; a brilliant war hero and soldier who rose from the ranks, private to general; a public figure who has held with great credit all principal statewide executive positions, auditor general, treasurer and governor; and a political leader of great ability, who rose in the Republican Party to serve three terms as Republican State Chairman.

Congressman Karl C. King, first Republican Congressman from Bucks County since 1932, a nationally known intensive farmer and grower of garden produce on a vast scale; whose qualifications for Congress were so outstanding that the Democrats of the Bucks-Lehigh District refused to enter a candidate against him when he was nominated to run as successor to Congressman Vaughn, deceased, a year ago. He is now completing his first part term with a successful record.

Assemblymen Wilson L. Yeakel and Marvin V. Keller, who have served twelve and two terms respectively in the Pennsylvania State Legislature. Both have excellent records in office and both are successful business men in their own communities—Mr. Yeakel in Perkasie and Mr. Keller in Newtown.

A first duty of all voters who want good public officials is to support and re-elect those who prove themselves faithful and competent after being given a trial.

This principle means that all four of the law-makers listed above deserve your vote next Tuesday.

The way to give them your support on election day, and at the same time vote for all the other deserving Republicans on the ticket, is simple.

When you receive your ballot, look for the word "REPUBLICAN", and put a cross after it, thus:

REPUBLICAN X

Farmers National Bank To Issue Courier Supplement

A special Croydon-Bensalem supplement to the Bristol Courier will be printed Saturday as a contribution to Croydon Day by the Farmers National Bank of Bucks County, which is opening its new Croydon Branch at that time.

The supplement will feature pictures and stories concerning the history of the Neshaminy Valley, including a spread of new photographs of some of the old mansions of the community.

Another valuable part of the supplement will be a new street map of the territory from the edge of Bristol Borough west to and including Cornwells Heights. The map, which is copyrighted by Farmers National Bank of Bucks County, has been brought up to date to include many recent streets not previously shown.

Roundup accounts of past and recent happenings in the area will be included, with special accounts of such matters as boating on the Neshaminy, the history of the Bucks County Rescue Squad, the development of the cluster of Catholic institutions in Bensalem Twp., and an account of the volunteer fire departments in the Croydon-Bensalem region.

The supplement will be printed as a tabloid forming part of the regular Saturday edition of the Bristol Courier. It can easily be separated from the rest of the paper and saved for future reference.

Bristol Man Goes On Trial in Stabbing Case

Frank Indelicato is Charged With Intent to Kill His Ex-Wife

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 29—Charged with aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill his ex-wife and her husband, Frank Indelicato, of 1011 Elm street, Bristol, went on trial yesterday in the Bucks county criminal court before a jury in Judge Edwin H. Satterthwaite's court.

Indelicato is charged with the crime alleged to have been committed at the home of Ion Petrescu when he lived in Bristol on June 7, this year. Mrs. Jennie Petrescu, wife of Ion, was previously married to Indelicato. The Petrescus now reside in Trenton, N. J.

Jenny and her present husband, Ion, testified that they were both stabbed by Indelicato on June 7 after he had come to their Bristol apartment, stating as he entered it: "I have come for two reasons, and one is to knock you both off."

Both Petrescu and his wife were hospitalized in Trenton and in Bristol. Mrs. Petrescu had to undergo an operation for a wound in the abdomen.

Members of the jury include: Wilmer W. Cressman, Quakertown RD 2; Helen S. Smith, Southampton; William L. Gallagher, Newtown; William D. Bartholomew, Perkasie; C. LeRoy Murray, Warrington; John S. Foote, Morrisville; John H. Rockel, Hilltown; James E. Budd, Langhorne RD 2; John M. Dahl, Quakertown RD 3; Ethel Peregrin, Langhorne RD 3.

Mrs. Petrescu testified that she was working in the kitchen when Indelicato, her former husband, walked in the room. She said her present husband was in a nearby room looking at television at the time, and when he heard Indelicato walk in and make a statement about "knocking you both off," that he got off the couch.

"Indelicato then smacked me on the face," Mrs. Petrescu said. "My husband grabbed the telephone to call police, and then Indelicato

One Site is 800x1,000 Feet, Other 11 Acres, Both In Levittown Area

Falls Township School Board officials yesterday afternoon laid claim to two proposed school sites in the Levittown area. Officers of Falls Township school board placed stakes in the ground at the corners of the sites.

"From this time and forever this site belongs to the Falls township school district," said Alvan Thompson, school board president, as the stakes were pounded into the ground.

The land to which the township school board laid claim is presently owned by Warner Sand and Gravel Co., according to T. Sidney Cadwalader, attorney for the board, who was present at the proceedings. He said he believed that at present the claimed ground was under a sale commitment to Levitt and Sons, Inc.

In explaining the reason for the school board's exercising its right of eminent domain T. Sidney Cadwalader, said, "the last site Levitt offered to us was a tract of a little over 16 acres for which he is asking some $76,000."

"The reason he gave us for the price he asked," continued Cadwalader, "was that it represented his cost of acquisition and his cost of improving the land."

"The school board feels that it can save taxpayers money if it can obtain the land now, from the Warner Co., before the land is improved."

"We have contacted Warner," Cadwalader added, "but that company said that it could not negotiate with the school board for the land because of previous commitments."

Present at yesterday's action were, Thompson, James P. Doehy, secretary of the school board; Cadwalader; and Harry H. Lee, Jr., surveyor for the school district.

The first site to which the board laid claim was a plot 800x1000 feet bounded on two sides by Elderberry Drive, the right of way of nearby high-tension wires along the other two sides bounded roughly by North Park Drive. The ground is a high level tract. It was at one time the property of William and Robert Baker.

After claim was made to the first site the school authorities placed their stakes which were marked "Falls Twp. School Dist." on an 11-acre tract which had been formerly owned by Stephen Jadoch, according to Cadwalader. The land was sold by Jadoch to the Warner Company, Cadwalader explained. The property adjacent to the land claimed by the school district is a tract of 16 acres for the purchase of which the board is presently negotiating.

Organize Fairless Hills Fathers Into Indian Guides

FAIRLESS HILLS, Oct. 29—A group of Fairless Hills fathers met Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Klein, 500 Audin Drive, to organize a Fairless Hills "Y" Indian Guides group, a national father and son club program sponsored by the Young Men's Christian Association. It is a program in which fathers and sons participate together as tribe members. Its main purpose is to multiply the number of things that fathers and sons can do together at an age when a boy thinks his dad is the greatest man in the world.

The "Y" believes that comradeship of father and son has mutual advantages that no other program offers.

The Fairless Hills fathers committee includes Ralph W. Klein, Blair Wilson, Michael G. Paulson, Robert Cooper, George Dorland and Leo V. Coffee. They will meet with their sons Tuesday evening, November 11th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dorland.

O. E. Norbeck, Executive Secretary of the Lower Bucks District YMCA, says that plans are well underway to organize additional Tribes in Fairless Hills for the boys from six to eight. Additional Tribes are in the committee stage in Levittown, Morrisville and Bristol Twp. Fairless Hills also has an Indian Lore Club program for the older boys who meet every Saturday morning in the Community Center building.

A MATTER OF NAMES

Governors of the New York Curb Exchange have recommended adoption of a new name, The American Stock Exchange. They
argue that while the present name is "revered because of its traditional grassroots tie to our market's outdoor origins, it is no longer indicative of our true status in national and international economic affairs."

The governors think the new name would help expand "the circle of investors to include many people who have not hitherto owned corporate securities."

The Curb Exchange belongs to its members and they have a right to call their association anything that seems suitable to them. Beginning as an unorganized congregation of curbside brokers, dealing in the securities of small and new companies with speculative prospects, the Curb Exchange gradually widened its field and grew in prestige. It broke with its informal past in 1921 when it moved indoors. The present value of its 871 stocks and bond issues is estimated at $18,000,000,000.

All this has been accomplished under a name that for more than 30 years has been anything but descriptive. The Curb Exchange has become the leading market in the United States for foreign securities. Certainly it would be more appropriate to call it the American Stock Exchange than the Curb Exchange.

TANK FOR TANK

While the fighting in Korea recalls all too vividly at times the static trench warfare of World War I, U. S. military strategy is predicted on a "war of movement." Developments which have made practically every piece of military equipment self propelling, plus the use of the plane as "flying artillery," have made this inevitable.

Terrain, of course, still calls the tune, as it is doing in Korea. But to meet the constant threat of enemy tanks and planes new types
of guns have been developed, which have great mobility and
range, and new types of ammunition to go along with them. For that reason the United States is not going to be lured into a race to see who can produce the most tanks.

Neshaminy Joint Board

showed a balance on hand of $34,239.40.

Corts reported that construction of the new high school building is proceeding on schedule. He announced that the first load of steel for the school arrived yesterday.
The athletic fields have been graded, he said, and the trees in the driveway have been pruned. The water pipes are in along the road up to the highway entrance to the school, he added, and the concrete work for the school foundation is essentially completed.

Dr. Heckman reported that except for the B section the concrete work is completed.

The Sun Oil Company was reported to have offered to come out to the school site and survey it for the shock recording device the school wishes to place at the school and it was ordered that the architect be directed to find out in writing the cost of the offered services.

Thomas Coe accepted the assignment of having a survey made of insurance coverage on the building and equipment of the district's schools.

Harry Franks, football coach,
was advised to pay outstanding medical bills in the amount of approximately $94 representing costs of injuries to students, not covered fully by school insurance, but which had been incurred while engaged in school sports.

A request was made by Paul that a study of the agreements between the five districts of the joint board and the joint board be made to determine whether the component boards should pay into the joint board on a per pupil basis the cost of operation of the joint high school.

Salaries of substitute teachers and those on emergency certificates were raised to conform to the new state minimum salary payable to these instructors.

Mary Lou Eaton, Lucille S.
Zahniser were hired as teachers and Francis Barlow was employed as a janitor by the joint board.

lled the phone out of his hand and hit him in the jaw. Then the fight started and before it ended
we had both been stabbed."

Dr. William A. Chesner, of Trenton, N. J., described the operation that he performed on Mrs. Petrescu.

Petrescu also described the fight, and admitted that he grabbed Indelicato by the neck when he started at him, and that it was at that time that he noticed a knife in his hand.

Attorney J. Leslie Kilcoyne, of Bristol, counsel for Indelicato, asked Petrescu if it was not true that he, a native of Rumania, who came here in 1951, is in this country illegally at the present time.

The question was objected to by
Assistant District Attorney J.
Franklin Hartzel, and the court
sustained the objection.

"I think it goes to the credibility
of this man," Kilcoyne declared.
Two of Mrs. Petrescu's sons also described the fight, and one of them persuaded Indelicato to put down the knife.

Church's Responsibility,
Total Abstinence, is Topic

"The Church's Responsibility in Teaching Total Abstinence" was the topic for discussion at the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held last evening, at the home of Mrs. Samuel Pearson.

Mrs. Minnie Vandegrift was the leader.

Mrs. Vandegrift pointed out that
"The time has come for cultivation of new growth in temperance development. The church has a new challenge in news of the addiction
of youth to various narcotics sickening the souls of parents and clergy; with traffic accidents due to alcohol claiming more and more victims; with radio and television programs sending their cigarette
and beer propaganda into the home;
with gambling and vice rampant in the centers of law-making and public administration; when few family magazines can be found with stories free from nonchalant drinking and liquor advertising;
with thousands of our boys being sent away from their homes into camps and battle areas; the Church is coming to realize that a program of total abstinence stronger than any they have yet pursued must be investigated and carried out."

In the business meeting, election of officers was held with the following named: president, Mrs. Samuel Pearson; vice president, Mrs.

William Hakes; recording secretary, Mrs. Harry Neher; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Adam Smith; treasurer, Miss Jane Rogers.
Plans were made for the covered dish supper meeting in November in Bristol Presbyterian Church. The speaker will be the Rev. Glenn Wampole, of Zion Lutheran Church.

FIREMEN KEPT BUSY

A fire in the roof of the Second
Baptist Church, 647 Race Street was put out by Bristol firemen yesterday a little after noon. The fire was reported to have been started accidentally by workmen who were soldering rain spouts on the church roof. Fifteen firemen responded to the call. A fire which completely consumed a small chicken coop belonging to the Lejeski's, on Rogers road, was fought by Bristol firemen, late last night. No injuries were reported as a result of the fire. Two other fires, one a grass fire at Bath road and Route 13, the other a fire in two junk autos at DeMarchis Brothers, 99 Railroad ave., were extinguished by Bristol firemen yesterday. At three o'clock this morning firemen responded to a false alarm from the call box

at Farragut and McKinley streets.

Governors of the New York
Curb Exchange have recommended adoption of a new name, The American Stock Exchange. They
argue that while the present name
is "revered because of its traditional grassroots tie to our market's outdoor origins, it is no longer indicative of our true status in national and international economic affairs."

The governors think the new name would help expand "the circle of investors to include many people who have not hitherto
owned corporate securities."

The Curb Exchange belongs to
its members and they have a right
to call their association anything that seems suitable to them. Beginning as an unorganized congregation of curbside brokers, dealing in the securities of small and new companies with speculative
prospects, the Curb Exchange
gradually widened its field and
grew in prestige. It broke with its informal past in 1921 when it moved indoors. The present value
of its 871 stocks and bond issues is estimated at $18,000,000,000.

All this has been accomplished under a name that for more than 30 years has been anything but descriptive. The Curb Exchange
has become the leading market in the United States for foreign securities. Certainly it would be more appropriate to call it the American Stock Exchange than the Curb Exchange.

TANK FOR TANK

While the fighting in Korea recalls all too vividly at times the
static trench warfare of World War I, U. S. military strategy is predicted on a "war of movement." Developments which have made practically every piece of
military equipment self propelling,
plus the use of the plane as "flying artillery," have made this inevitable.

Terrain, of course, still calls the time, as it is doing in Korea. But to meet the constant threat of
enemy tanks and planes new types
of guns have been developed,
which have great mobility and
range, and new types of ammunition to go along with them. For that reason the United States is
not going to be lured into a race
to see who can produce the most tanks.

Neshaminy Joint Board

showed a balance on hand of $24,239.40.

Corts reported that construction
of the new high school building is proceeding on schedule. He announced that the first load of steel
for the school arrived yesterday.
The athletic fields have been graded, he said, and the trees in the driveway have been pruned. The
water pipes are in along the road
up to the highway entrance to the school, he added, and the concrete
work for the school foundation is essentially completed.

Dr. Heckman reported that except for the B section the concrete
work is completed.

The Sun Oil Company was reported to have offered to come out to the school site and survey it for
the shock recording device the
school wishes to place at the school
and it was ordered that the architect be directed to find out in writing the cost of the offered services.

Thomas Coe accepted the assignment of having a survey made of
insurance coverage on the building
and equipment of the district's schools.

Harry Franks, football coach,
was advised to pay outstanding
medical bills in the amount of approximately $94 representing costs
of injuries to students, not covered fully by school insurance, but

which had been incurred while engaged in school sports.

A request was made by Paul that
a study of the agreements between
the five districts of the joint board
and the joint board be made to determine whether the component
boards should pay into the joint board on a per pupil basis the cost of operation of the joint high school.

Salaries of substitute teachers
and those on emergency certificates
were raised to conform to the new state minimum salary payable to these instructors.

Mary Lou Eaton, Lucille S.
Zahniser were hired as teachers
and Francis Barlow was employed as a janitor by the joint board.

FRY-VAN VOSSEN

Miss Eleanor VanVossen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Van Vos-sen, Durham road, became the

Mrs. Morris Updyke, Walnut street,
Oct. 25th, in Calvary Baptist Church, Lehman Strauss, pastor, and the Rev. Edward Baumeister officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Miss Elsie VanVossen, sister of the bride, was maid of honor; the best man was the Rev. Parker Tomlinson, Cedarville, N. J. Messrs. James and William Fry were ushers, Miss Alberta pulled the phone out of his hand and hit him in the jaw. Then the fight started and before it ended

we had both been stabbed."

Dr. William A. Chesner, of Trenton, N. J., described the operation that he performed on Mrs. Petrescu.
Petrescu also described the fight,
and admitted that he grabbed In-
delicato by the neck when he started at him, and that it was at that time that he noticed a knife in his hand.

Attorney J. Leslie Kilcoyne, of Bristol, counsel for Indelicato, asked Petrescu if it was not true that he, a native of Rumania, who came here in 1951, is in this country illegally at the present time.

The question was objected to by
Assistant District Attorney J.
Franklin Hartzel, and the court
sustained the objection.

"I think it goes to the credibility
of this man," Kilcoyne declared.

Two of Mrs. Petrescu's sons also described the fight, and one of them
persuaded Indelicato to put down
the knife.

Church's Responsibility,
Total Abstinence, is Topic

"The Church's Responsibility in Teaching Total Abstinence" was
the topic for discussion at the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held last evening, at the home of Mrs. Samuel Pearson.

Mrs. Minnie Vandegrift was the leader.

Mrs. Vandegrift pointed out that
"The time has come for cultivation
of new growth in temperance development. The church has a new challenge in news of the addiction
of youth to various narcotics sickening the souls of parents and
clergy; with traffic accidents due
to alcohol claiming more and more victims; with radio and television
programs sending their cigarette
and beer propaganda into the home;
with gambling and vice rampant in
the centers of law-making and
public administration; when few
family magazines can be found without stories from nonchalant
drinking and liquor advertising;
with thousands of our boys being
sent away from their homes into
camps and battle areas; the Church
is coming to realize that a program
of total abstinence stronger than
any they have yet pursued must be investigated and carried out."

In the business meeting, election
of officers was held with the following named: president, Mrs. Samuel Pearson; vice president, Mrs.

William Hakes; recording secretary, Mrs. Harry Neher; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Adam
Smith; treasurer, Miss Jane Rogers.
Plans were made for the covered
dish supper meeting in November
in Bristol Presbyterian Church. The speaker will be the Rev. Glenn Wampole, of Zion Lutheran Church.

FIREMEN KEPT BUSY

A fire in the roof of the Second
Baptist Church, 647 Race Street was put out by Bristol firemen yesterday a little after noon. The fire was reported to have been started accidentally by workmen who were
soldering rain spouts on the church
roof. Fifteen firemen responded to the call. A fire which completely
consumed a small chicken coop

belonging to the Lejeski's, on Rogers road, was fought by Bristol
firemen, late last night. No injuries were reported as a result of the fire. Two other fires, one a grass
fire at Bath road and Route 13, the other a fire in two junk autos at DeMarchis Brothers, 99 Railroad
ave., were extinguished by Bristol
firemen yesterday. At three o'clock this morning firemen responded to
a false alarm from the call box
at Farragut and McKinley streets.

NEWTOWN

Miss Elizabeth Dwyer and Mrs.
Stephen M. Vandegrift were Saturday dinner guests of Mrs. Frank Lyons, Pennel.

Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards was the

Thursday guest of the Misses Meyers, Buckingham.

Discuss Steering Committee For Levittown Organization

LEVITTOWN, Oct. 29—A plan to form a steering committee of officers of the Levittown Jewish Community Brotherhood and Sisterhood was approved by members of the Sisterhood at a meeting last evening at Bristol Jewish Center. Seventy women attended.

Copies of a proposed charter for the Sisterhood will be distributed to members at the next meeting, it was announced, for consideration at future meetings. The women discussed finances and decided to begin their fund-raising on a small-scale plan.

The location of a temporary meeting place, before a Levittown Jewish Center is constructed, was discussed, but no decision was made. The nominating committee said they will present a slate of prospective officers of the Sisterhood at a later meeting.

The Levittown Jewish Community Brotherhood is sending a questionnaire to Jewish families in the development, asking their religious affiliation and needs, it was announced last night.

The Sisterhood and Brotherhood was formed with the primary purpose of building a Jewish Community Center in Levittown. Mrs. Fred Rothstein, acting president, announced. The building would be used as a social center, for religious education and for worship by three Jewish faiths, Orthodox, Conservative and Reformed, she said, and would be a center for expansion of other activities in Levittown.

"This November I have the opportunity to cast my vote for a great man — Eisenhower. Like everyone else, it took me 21 years to achieve this privilege and I fully intend to use it to the best of my judgment. Looking at all pro's and con's, Ike is, in my estimation, every inch a real man and the strong character we need in our government at this crucial time. I am really proud that I can cast my first vote for Ike, a man who will go down in history as a leader with a heart for the welfare of the people— young and old."

tioning with the Levitt concern. This tract lies along the Penn Valley road near the Fallsington road.

The portion of the former Baker property to which the board laid claim had been staked out as a proposed school site. Stakes marking it as such were in the ground, at the time of the school board placed its stakes. Both sites are marked out on maps of the Levitt company as proposed school sites, though the boundaries of these sites and the tracts claimed by the school board may differ slightly.

The brick facing or hearth of your fireplace will be easier to clean if you apply one or more coats of clear floor sealer. This will also bring out the color of the brick and give it a gloss.

Educational Program of The U. S. Army Discovers

CROYDON, Oct. 29—A meeting of Croydon Parent-Teacher Ass'n was held last evening in Croydon school.

The Bible reading, Lord's Prayer and salute to the flag were led by Mrs. Frank Castor.

Robert Krebs, elementary supervisor of Bristol twp. schools, introduced Thomas Allen, educational advisor of Ft. Dix, N. J. He spoke of the educational program of the Army and told how they train men who wish to obtain a college education after serving with the Army, those with no schooling and those seeking a high school diploma.

Pvt. Henry Silveira, with the information and educational section of the U. S. Army, and a graduate of Harvard, was introduced. He told how the Army screens aliens overseas who have escaped from iron curtain countries, and who are brought to this country to be educated at Ft. Dix.

Next introduced was Cpl. Danne Goldstein, staff photographer for the Army newspaper at Ft. Dix. Presiding at the business session was Mrs. Edwin Mandell. Committee reports were given. The treasurer's report was made by Mrs. Morris Shifferstein. Minutes were read by Mrs. Frank Castor.

Halloween parties are scheduled for Oct. 31st at Croydon school—11 a. m. for children of morning sessions, and 3:45 p. m. for afternoon sessions. Children are asked to take costumes to school and they will be allowed time to dress. Refreshments will be furnished by the P. T. A., assisted by room mothers. Room award was won by Mrs.

Eleanor Schuster's 1st grade. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Howard Taylor, assisted by other hostesses.

"I am a small businessman. My chief reason for voting for Eisenhower is that he is a good executive. Running our government properly is a question of organization and Eisenhower is a good organizer. He is the one man best suited for that job. He may not be able to shoot at a barn but he can pick men to shoot at a barn. Levitt Promises to Give Addition to School

Will Provide One-to-Three-Room Addition to Tullytown School, is Report

LEVITTOWN, Oct. 29—William Levitt, builder of this development, has promised to provide Tullytown School Board with a one-to-three classroom addition, "if it possibly can be found." He made the announcement at a meeting with members of the executive committee of the Levittown Civic Association.

Meeting with Levitt and members of his staff were Philip Brown, temporary president of the Civic Association, Philip Brusser, treasurer and Mrs. Madeline Smith, chairman of the welcoming committee. They discussed the difficulties brought about by the new influx of population.

Brown and Ulrich Frank, who recently surveyed the school situation, said a school addition would make possible a full day's graded system in Tullytown.

Levitt offered use of the auditorium in the Levittown administration building for meetings of the Civic Association, and said he will furnish 200 chairs for the group.

Work on Levittown Parkway (Tullytown - Oxford Valley road) will be started the second week of November and should be completed in 90 days, Levitt said. When the state has completed widening Route 13 to six lanes, a traffic light will be erected at its intersection with the Parkway.

Levittown station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, with a parking area, is scheduled to be completed at the end of January, the builder said.

He promised to provide for Levittown "the best civil defense program of any place around," in reply to inquiries by the Civic Association committee.

The Civic Association will hold a constitution meeting Thursday, Nov. 6, at 8 p. m., in Tullytown Fire Hall, to discuss and vote on a proposed charter. The date was changed from Nov. 4 because of election day.

A regular meeting will be held in the auditorium of the administration building (town hall) Tuesday, Nov. 18, at 8 p. m.

The Sterns became Levittowners Oct. 1, moving from the Strawberry Mansion section of Phila. Mr. Stern, a graduate of Temple University, Phila., is an accountant for Samuel J. Needleman & Co., of that city.

He was a radio operator in the Army Air Corps during World War II, and flew over the "Hump" in the China-Burma-India theater. Mrs. Stern, a registered nurse, trained at Jewish Hospital, Phila., and was on the staff there.

Her nurse's training comes in handy in caring for the two Stern children, Linda, 2½, and Sheldon, five months old.

LEVITTOWN, Oct. 29—When Frank M. Baca, of 31 Lavender lane, is not on duty at Willow Grove Naval Air Station, he spends much of his time designing, making and flying model airplanes. He gets some ideas for his models at Willow Grove. A flying model he recently made has landing gear shock absorbers whose design he copied from a Navy plane.

Mr. Baca, a machinist mate 2/c, is station keeper at the Willow Grove air base, where he has been assigned for six years. He and his wife, Rene, and their son, Michael, made their home in Hatboro before moving here Sept. 17.

Mr. Baca comes from Bethlehem. He joined the Navy during World War II, was discharged after the war, went to work in a steel mill in Bethlehem, and re-enlisted in the Navy a few months later. He has completed nine years' service.

Mr. Baca also enjoys oil painting, but doesn't find his subjects at the air station; he paints from small illustrations. In his home are paintings he has made of boats, a picture of a ballerina, and an oil portrait he made of his wife.

Mrs. Baca paints ceramic figurines and pottery. She also enjoys knitting and sewing and is making a hooked rug with a floral design for her new home. She is a native of Phila., where she attended Olney High School and did office work in the Sears, Roebuck & Co. mail order department.

Michael Baca is only ten months old but he is already walking and has eight teeth.

Sickness and Distrust

never let one another know that we doubted it would be soon.

When we arrived at the prison-mine, the first thing the authorities did was to order us to line up. They took everything away from us except our uniforms. We had been allowed to keep some personal effects at the distribution center, but now they took everything. We found that we would be shaved once a week by the camp barber, who was also a prisoner. Prisoners weren't allowed razors because they could be used as weapons.

We were assigned an uninsulated wooden barrack that looked like the ones the Germans had for their prisoners during the war. The barracks were well-lighted by electricity, but each had a coal ration of only 33 pounds for every 24 hours, which meant we could not start heating until 11 in the morning if we wanted our supply to last till evening.

There were three work shifts a day. I began on the early one, which was from 6 a. m. to 2 p. m. Actually, it was much longer than this, as we had to wait over an hour in formation while they checked the roll.

The day began at 4.30 in the morning. A guard would wake us; then we had half an hour in which to dress, wash and eat breakfast. The washing wasn't much of a problem, for during the winter the pipes froze and we couldn't get any water.

There were showers, and when the pipes weren't frozen we could take showers after we had finished our work in the mine. They gave us a small ration of soap, but it wasn't enough for anyone who had clean habits. Our underwear was sent to the wash only once every 14 days, so I tried to save enough soap to wash mine in between times.

Breakfast consisted of ersatz coffee and nothing else, unless one had saved a little of the daily bread ration—a slice about two and a half inches thick—to go with it.

After "breakfast" we lined up while the guards checked us off. It was bitterly cold in winter in the early morning, and we had to stand there in the rain or snow until the prisoner group in the mine came out so we could relieve them. It was usually over an hour that we stood there, but we had to turn out our quota of work in the mine no matter what time we entered the shaft.

If we didn't fill the quota, they would make us work another eight-hour shift.

When we entered the shaft of the mine, we had to give up a little numbered tag and then pick it up when we came out. In that way, they could tell if all the prisoners were on the job, and also if there had been any escapes.

There were about 200 miners in each shift, and once we entered the shaft, we split up into two-men work crews. It was very damp in the mines, and we wore rubber pants, coats and boots. From 1949 until I escaped in 1951, the quota of work was doubled. At the end, my two-man team had to tunnel a shaft six-by-six feet a foot and a half farther into the rock each day. This meant we would fill about 20 little mine cars a day with ore to be processed and shipped to Russia. It was cold in the mines, but strangely enough it was colder in the mine in summer (about 37 degrees) than in winter (43).

One of the worst things in the life was that you never knew whom you could trust. The SNB police were always trying to turn you into an informer, and they would mix criminal prisoners with the political prisoners and give them time-off for informing. They got their sentences reduced by as much as half for turning up an escape plot.

At two o'clock, if we had finished our quota, we would climb a ladder 330 feet back to the surface. It was very difficult to drag yourself up after a day's work on just a cup of coffee.

Lunch consisted of potatoes or turnips, a little meat four times a week, and the usual ersatz coffee. We usually had enough to fill our stomachs, but it was the kind of food that always left you feeling hungry.

Sometimes the meat was too bad to eat; it was always the leftovers from the butcher shops. We also got a piece of fat once a week. Those who were working in the mines got a bonus every 15 days—a piece of salami. We got nine ounces of margarine every 30 days, but we asked to substitute that for less on Sundays.

If anyone was late to formation, one of the guards would walk over and strike the prisoner on the face with his open hand. This happened to someone every day. If a prisoner was guilty of a more serious violation of the rules, he was taken to the guards' office and beaten and kicked. If, when they had finished, there was blood coming from his mouth, they made him get on his knees and eat paper envelopes on the floor.

That served two purposes—it would stop the blood, and it was added punishment. They would put a glass of water just out of reach while he was eating the paper.

Three weeks before our escape, the foreman, who was one of us, was called to the guard house and interrogated daily for ten days because they had heard a rumor that we planned to escape. Of course he was beaten. But he did not disclose our plans.

Another trick they had to encourage the prisoners to talk was to put a steel band around the prisoner's forehead and tighten a set-screw in the rear until he could no longer stand the pain.

Occasionally they shot a prisoner. Five men died that way in my camp during the time I was there. They always said the man was trying to escape.

At supper, we were given more potatoes and a small piece of salami. There were always many prisoners sick from working in the damp mines. The hospital had 28 beds, and to be admitted one had to have a fever of 102 or higher. The camp doctor was not permitted to administer penicillin without the permission of the camp supervisor. There were usually more than 40 prisoners in the hospital.

They pushed all the cots together so that more patients could be handled.

We had modern mining equipment, but it was very difficult to finish the daily quota. When we were not working in the mines, we often had to do odd jobs around the camp, and the only recreation we had was an occasional game of cards or chess. At first we tried to play football, but as soon as one guard would give us the ball, another would come and say, "All right, you've played long enough." We built a boxing arena, but after two weeks they forbade us to use it.

We asked, and got permission, to build a little theater, where we intended to put on our own shows, but as soon as we finished it, the Communist camp officials took it over for propaganda purposes—and we were forced by the guards to go and listen to Communist speeches in the theater we had built.

never let one another know that we doubted it would be soon.

When we arrived at the prison-mine, the first thing the authorities did was to order us to line up. They took everything away from us except our uniforms. We had been allowed to keep some personal effects at the distribution center, but now they took everything. We found that we would be shaved once a week by the camp barber, who was also a prisoner. Prisoners weren't allowed razors because they could be used as weapons.

We were assigned an uninsulated wooden barrack that looked like the ones the Germans had for their prisoners during the war. The barracks were well-lighted by electricity, but each had a coal ration of only 33 pounds for every 24 hours, which meant we could not start heating until 11 in the morning if we wanted our supply to last till evening.

There were three work shifts a day. I began on the early one, which was from 6 a. m. to 2 p. m. Actually, it was much longer than this, as we had to wait over an hour in formation while they checked the roll.

The day began at 4:30 in the morning. A guard would wake us; then we had half an hour in which to dress, wash and eat breakfast. The washing wasn't much of a problem, for during the winter the pipes froze and we couldn't get any water.

There were showers, and when the pipes weren't frozen we could take showers after we had finished our work in the mine. They gave us a small ration of soap, but it wasn't enough for anyone who had clean habits. Our underwear was sent to the wash only once every 14 days, so I tried to save enough soap to wash mine in between times.

Breakfast consisted of ersatz coffee and nothing else, unless one had saved a little of the daily bread ration—a slice about two and a half inches thick—to go with it.

After "breakfast" we lined up while the guards checked us off. It was bitterly cold in winter in the early morning, and we had to stand there in the rain or snow until the prisoner group in the mine came out so we could relieve them. It was usually over an hour that we stood there, but we had to turn out our quota of work in the mine no matter what time we entered the shaft.

If we didn't fill the quota, they would make us work another eight-hour shift.

When we entered the shaft of the mine, we had to give up a little numbered tag and then pick it up when we came out. In that way, they could tell if all the prisoners were on the job, and also if there had been any escapes.

There were about 200 miners in each shift, and once we entered the shaft, we split up into two-men work crews. It was very damp in the mines, and we wore rubber pants, coats and boots. From 1949 until I escaped in 1951, the quota of work was doubled. At the end, my two-man team had to tunnel shaft six-by-six feet a foot and a half farther into the rock each day. This meant we would fill about 20 little mine cars a day with ore to be processed and shipped to Russia. It was cold in the mines, but strangely enough it was colder in the mine in summer (about 37 degrees) than in winter (43).

One of the worst things in the life was that you never knew whom you could trust. The SNB police were always trying to turn you into an informer, and they would mix criminal prisoners with the political prisoners and give them time-off for informing. They got their sentences reduced by as much as half for turning up an escape plot.

At two o'clock, if we had finished our quota, we would climb a ladder 330 feet back to the surface. It was very difficult to drag yourself up after a day's work on just a cup of coffee.

Lunch consisted of potatoes or lumpings, a little meat four times a week, and the usual ersatz coffee. We usually had enough to fill our stomachs, but it was the kind of food that always left you feeling hungry.

Sometimes the meat was too bad to eat; it was always the leftovers from the butcher shops. We also got a piece of fat once a week. Those who were working in the mines got a bonus every 15 days—a piece of salami. We got nine ounces of margarine every 30 days, but we asked to substitute that for less on Sundays.

If anyone was late to formation, one of the guards would walk over and strike the prisoner on the face with his open hand. This happened to someone every day. If a prisoner was guilty of a more serious violation of the rules, he was taken to the guards' office and beaten and kicked. If, when they had finished, there was blood coming from his mouth, they made him get on his knees and eat paper envelopes on the floor.

That served two purposes—it would stop the blood, and it was added punishment. They would put a glass of water just out of reach while he was eating the paper.

Three weeks before our escape, the foreman, who was one of us, was called to the guard house and interrogated daily for ten days because they had heard a rumor that we planned to escape. Of course he was beaten. But he did not disclose our plans.

Another trick they had to encourage the prisoners to talk was to put a steel band around the prisoner's forehead and tighten a set-screw in the rear until he could no longer stand the pain.

Occasionally they shot a prisoner. Five men died that way in my camp during the time I was there. They always said the man was trying to escape.

At supper, we were given more potatoes and a small piece of salami. There were always many prisoners sick from working in the damp mines. The hospital had 28 beds, and to be admitted one had to have a fever of 102 or higher. The camp doctor was not permitted to administer penicillin without the permission of the camp supervisor. There were usually more than 40 prisoners in the hospital.

They pushed all the cots together so that more patients could be handled.

We had modern mining equipment, but it was very difficult to finish the daily quota. When we were not working in the mines, we often had to do odd jobs around the camp, and the only recreation we had was an occasional game of cards or chess. At first we tried to play football, but as soon as one guard would give us the ball, another would come and say, "All right, you've played long enough." We built a boxing arena, but after two weeks they forbade us to use it.

We asked, and got permission, to build a little theater, where we intended to put on our own shows, but as soon as we finished it, the Communist camp officials took it over for propaganda purposes—and we were forced by the guards to go and listen to Communist speeches in the theater we had built.
